DE SIBOUR IN POOR LUCK.
The De Sibour-Talcott match was crowded with hard-luck events for the defeated man. He broke two of his favorite midlows, which, golfers will tell you, is enough to unsettle the most expert player in the world, and in addition, Talcott would reach the hole from the most unfavorable lies, either trying or missing the ball on the last putt.

EXCITING GOLF MATCHES PLAYED ON CHEVY CHASE CLUB COURSE

Thompson and De Sibour Most Surprising Defeats in Second Round of Match Play for President's Cup.

The second round of match play in the handicap golf tournament for the president's cup yesterday on the Chevy Chase Links was spirited, a majority of the contests being very close. In some instances decisions were not arrived at until the journey around the course had been almost completed. The course had dried out enough to make it conform to the ideal weather, the greens especially calling for words of praise.

Samuel Dalzell, who has been picked to win the tournament by the clubhouse prophets, has had an easy time of it thus far, getting defaults on both the first and second rounds. Yesterday he played a round with Allan Lard and kept in trim for an opponent whenever the match should turn up. Dalzell is certainly in splendid form just now, but the wise people are predicting a tough battle today when he plays T. A. Clayton.

The matches yesterday were generally settled on the greens, and as the pairs reached the clubhouse all recounted stories of wonderful putts or exceptionally lucky shots from the rough to the holes.

Two prizes were developed during the afternoon, when Clayton defeated Thompson and Talcott got the best of De Sibour. It was the general belief that the two defeated men would turn out winners, but the handicaps played havoc with all predictions.

Clayton Putts Well.
At the start of the Thompson-Clayton match the former showed up exceptionally well, the latter getting into almost all the trouble that was possible on the first five holes. Thompson was only one down at that point and had got rid of three of the allotted strokes to his opponent in the handicap. But Clayton started going on the sixth hole, and from there to the finish simply outdid himself in putting.
